

Next Story >>

Dittos' Top 100

Star Carr

28 August 2008, 04:44PM

WITH a chic scarf one of the ultimate style statements for the new season, Jane Carr is a name to know.

Carr is a Central Saint Martins trained designer who spent four years as Versace's head of printed textiles for womenswear before establishing her own-named label in 2005 in order to do exactly what she loves doing best - creating the kind of scarves that dreams are made of.

"Scarves for me have always been about wearing a touchstone, something you love, a kind of security blanket, an emblem of a moment in time," Carr tells us. "They are the staple of any chic wardrobe - something to collect, to enjoy."

Standout styles for the new season include the stole - a large multi-colour printed shawl available in a cashmere-silk blend with hand-frayed hems for warmth - and the carre, a large two-colour, square gem scarf with hand-rolled hems in silk voile.

"The modern scarf has become the new handbag - it's the defining accessory," adds Carr. "It's about reinvention, the dawn of a revival. That's why I launched the range. It's versatile and easy - it's a great way of finishing a look, but it all depends on how you wear it."

Find your style online at www.jane-carr.com; alternatively, the label is stocked at Fortnum & Mason, Koh Samui and Coco Ribbon in the UK.

Leisa Barnett

ShareThis

Jane Carr's autumn/winter 2008-9 stole in kabuki

Sign Up for Daily News

 SUBMIT

VOGUE.COM LOVES

A Shopping Spree

Raid Newburgh's shops with £500 to spend

Feeling
Nautical?

Stylefinder.com
The best of what's in-store, online

VOGUE
EXCLUSIVE
ONLINE OFFER